TRSA: Update from the family of Amy Herrmann

The news regarding Amy's condition continues to be positive some 8 days after her injury.

On Saturday afternoon, doctors in the Intensive Care Unit at Royal Adelaide Hospital withdrew all sedation to Amy and she is now conscious, and responsive to doctors and family.

Amy's improvement over the 8 days has been as good as could have been possibly hoped for after such a serious injury.

Amy's family and boyfriend Chad wish to again thank all the staff at the Royal Adelaide Hospital for their care of Amy.

She is being transferred from ICU to the ward but doctors are still very definite that she cannot have any visitors at this stage.

The family will provide another update on Tuesday and once again, we wish to thank everyone for their concern and support.
